Deciding where you are as a professional learning community

What is an implementation rubric?

Rubrics are usually used as assessment tools to measure pupils' work. They are scoring guides that don't depend on a numerical score. Instead, they list a full range of criteria or elements to assess a particular piece of work or performance. They describe varying degrees of quality for each element, increasing from left to right. A benefit of rubrics is that they provide signposts to where you can get to as a result of development, and pointers to next steps that might be taken when trying to develop particular activities.

What is the purpose of this rubric?

This implementation rubric helps you see where colleagues think you are as a professional learning community (PLC) as they reflect on different criteria related to specific characteristics and processes of PLCs. The 12 topics down the left-hand side are the eight characteristics and four developmental processes of PLCs we identified in our study. For each of these, a number of key descriptors are mapped out horizontally, showing the development of each through four phases of their journey, highlighted at the top of the four columns. These range from what might be happening when you are starting on the journey to develop a PLC to action taken when the PLC is self-sustaining:

Starting out; acquiring information and beginning to use ideas.
Developing; experimenting with strategies and building on initial commitment.
Deepening; well on the way, having achieved a degree of mastery and feeling the benefits.
Sustaining; introducing new developments, re-evaluating quality – PLC as a way of life.

How might you use the rubric?

You might choose to use the rubric in a range of ways. For example:

- individual staff members complete the rubric privately and give it to a designated person or team who collate(s) responses and feed(s) these back to the staff for discussion
- individual staff members complete the rubric before sharing and discussing their responses with each other
- small groups complete the rubric together and then compare and summarise their responses

The rubric on pages 3–9 and summary response sheet on page 10 can be photocopied for circulation. Each person completing the rubric needs to look at the descriptors, perhaps highlighting comments that represent your PLC. They can then decide which phase best represents the PLC's current position, either highlighting the appropriate box in the table or marking the box in the blank response sheet included after the rubric. There is also a space labelled 'How do you know?' where people can note down evidence.

Looking through individual highlighted responses can help you see trends and patterns as well as differences in opinion. You can prepare a summary sheet of all the responses using the blank summary response sheet.

At the end of the activity, you will find some questions to discuss once you have pulled together the results.

The process can be repeated each year. You can look at changes people think have occurred and discuss the reasons for these changes.

Shared values and vision

Staff have diverse values related to educational issues. They are beginning to recognise the need to attend to some PLC-wide issues. There are initial discussions about these issues.

Some smaller groups (PLCs) within the staff may share values about education and leadership.

An increasing number of staff share educational values, and participate actively in discussions about vision and values.

Shared educational vision is often stronger and more apparent in particular sections or departments of the PLC.

Educational values and vision are fairly widely shared throughout the PLC and generally demonstrated through practice.

The vision is revisited regularly and commitment to whole-school, centre or college-wide professional values is increasing.

Educational values and vision are widely shared throughout the PLC, regularly revisited and revised as appropriate by the whole staff, and demonstrated through practice.

There is a high degree of commitment to whole-school, centre or college-wide professional values and a strong sense of cohesion and consistency of approach.

Learning-focused collaboration How do you know this?	Many staff mainly work in isolation. They focus on their own goals, value self-reliance and rarely share practices and strategies. Some smaller groups or departments collaborate and share learning and teaching and support strategies.	Some staff work together across the PLC, with joint planning, sharing strategies, and engaging in whole-school, centre or college-wide projects. Some support staff or care workers and teaching staff collaborate closely but this is not a common feature.	Staff increasingly plan together, collaborate and share ideas through meetings, website resources, team teaching etc. There are examples of productive teamwork between teachers and support staff.	Collaborative planning of learning and teaching activities is taken for granted. Sharing of ideas and strategies and joint problem-solving are widespread. Teamwork involving teachers and support or care staff is widespread.

Existence of professional learning	Professional learning mainly consists of formal, short courses and whole-school, centre or college in-service training. Take-up is largely based on individual interest. Enthusiasm for whole-school, centre or college professional learning experiences is limited. There are few work-based professional learning opportunities eg peer observation, coaching etc. There is mainly ad hoc talk about learning from external courses and visits.	A considerable number of staff are engaged in a variety of professional learning opportunities based on individual interest (eg courses, higher degrees etc) and increasingly this is also linked to school, centre or college aims. An increasing number of staff participate enthusiastically in whole-school, centre or college professional learning experiences. Staff feed back on their learning to smaller groups and, sometimes, the whole staff.	Staff are generally interested in a diverse range of individual and group opportunities to increase their knowledge, understanding and skills. Many staff participate enthusiastically in whole-school, centre or college professional learning experiences. Staff generally feed back their learning to the whole staff.	All staff are enthusiastically involved in a diverse range of individual, group and whole-school, centre or college professional learning experiences. The school, centre or college as a workplace is seen as an important site for learning by all staff. Staff devote effort and energy into incorporating valuable new strategies into their practice. Learning is widely shared across the whole staff.
How do you know this?	There is little reflection on, or enquiry into, practice. Data collection and the use of data to inform and develop learning and teaching practice are limited. Data may be seen as an end in itself and often as someone else's problem.	Some staff are involved in activities to investigate and improve learning and teaching, eg peer observation and coaching, action research, review and moderation of pupils' work etc. Data collection and the use of data to inform and develop learning and teaching are variable across the school, centre or college.	Many staff are actively involved and show increasing confidence about using different methods to explore and improve learning and teaching. Data collection and the use of data to inform and develop learning and teaching are increasingly consistent across the school, centre or college.	A questioning orientation to practice and 'need to know how we are doing and how we can improve' is pervasive. Staff confidently use a wide range of methods to investigate learning and teaching, using findings to inform and develop their practice. Data are collected, analysed and used to support this process.
How do you know this?	Reflective professional enquiry

Openness, networks and partnerships How do you know this?	There is very little professional contact outside the school, centre or college. External networks and partnerships are limited, as is the seeking of external ideas and strategies. The school, centre or college is relatively isolated from its community.	Some staff are interested and engaged in networks and activities beyond the school, centre or college as a source of generating and sharing ideas and strategies. There is some involvement with the community.	External sources for generating and sharing ideas and strategies are generally perceived as valuable. Staff are increasingly taking up opportunities to become involved in networks and external partnerships. Some whole-school, centre or college networking is being explored. Community partnerships are generally welcomed and positive.	Staff look beyond the school, centre or college for new ideas and strategies. External input is sought out and welcomed. Links with other schools, centres, colleges and external agencies are seen as valuable, productive and important. Many staff are involved in individual and school, centre or college-wide external networks. Community partnerships are thriving.
Inclusive membership How do you know this?	Membership of the PLC is confined to a small group of teaching staff and some or all school leaders. Input of support staff is not invited. Parental and governor or school council member involvement is limited.	Classroom support staff are increasingly involved as active members of the PLC. Other support staff are less involved. Parental and governor or school council member involvement is generally welcomed.	Many support staff (teaching and other) participate as active members of the PLC. Parental and governor or school council member involvement is welcomed.	The PLC includes all members of staff. All support staff are highly valued members of the PLC. The whole-school, centre or college PLC draws people together from across the organisation. Parental, pupil and governor or school council member involvement is welcomed and encouraged.

Questions for reflection and discussion

What did you notice as you were completing the rubric?

Which are the characteristics and processes, or aspects of these, where you feel you have progressed furthest along the route? What factors seem to have helped you?

Which are the characteristics and processes, or aspects of these, where you feel progression has been slower? What seems to have been holding back the PLC's development in these areas?

How will you move forward with this information? (You may also find it helpful to use Investigating the culture of your professional learning community, another Audit activity, to gather some different kinds of data. Alternatively, the Planning and Action materials may offer some ideas about next steps.)
